You may not always be able to access all the material that you need at Royal Holloway. You can request items through our inter library loan service, but you may need to visit other libraries to use reference items, or to use as study space.

Institute of Classical Studies

Postgraduate students are entitled to join the Library of the ICS, which is in Senate House. You are eligible for reference access to the collection, and if you are a member of the Roman or Hellenic Societies you will have borrowing access.

The Library doesn’t open on Sundays and access may vary at different points of the year. The Library will close at 6.00 pm on 18th August and re-open two weeks later on Monday 4th September at 9.30 am – see this page for opening times: http://library.icls.sas.ac.uk/opening-hours.htm

Senate House Library

All staff and students are eligible for membership of Senate House Library. This includes access to some e-resources, including ARTstor, Library of Latin Texts A & B and the Index to Theses. See the page below for instructions on how to register – you can register to use e-resources without visiting the library.

SCONUL Access Scheme

You can access some other university libraries through this scheme. You will usually be allowed to borrow but will not be entitled to use e-resources. It can take up to 48 hours (not including weekends) for your application to be approved so make sure you leave enough time before you want to visit. You will need to clear any library fines that you have here before applying.

University of London Libraries

You can access other libraries in the University of London, but it is best to check first as access policies vary and you may only be able to access the library at certain times. You will also need to take your College ID and other documents with you when you register.
